

Call for Bids ESO Summer School 2026 or 2027

The ESO annual Stroke Summer School is a prestigious educational event for stroke trainees throughout Europe. It has an internationally renowned teaching faculty drawn from the ESO membership. It has been responsible in recent years for developing and encouraging important future leaders in clinical stroke care and research.

ESO is seeking bids from individual institutions and countries from across Europe who may be interested in hosting this flagship event in 2026 or 2027, bringing education to our trainees and prestige to your institution.

The Summer School is organised by a Local Organising Committee, with logistical and financial support from the ESO Educational Committee and Executive Committee, with additional support available for applications from lower income countries.

More information is available in the "Guide: How to Organise a Stroke Summer School" document, available by request from the ESO Head Office.

Please download and complete the application form and return your expression of interest to bid for the 2026/2027 Summer School to the ESO Head Office.

If you have further questions about what is involved with running the Summer School, please contact the ESO Head Office.

Deadline to submit your application: 14 March 2025
